IMMEDIATE RELEASE

USD INTERSESSION INITIATES CREATIVE COURSES

SAN DIEGO, Calif.--Registration on January 3, 1972, at the University of San Diego Intersession will open the educational door to creative and unique courses. January 3 through January 22 intensive instruction will pursue subjects not offered during the regular scholastic year. The courses also afford the adult seeking knowledge to enroll and earn three semester units of academic credit.

Morning sessions, which will be taught five days a week from 9 - 11:45, are:

English - "Literature and Poverty: an investigation of such writers as Orwell, Celine and Lewis."

History - "The Ethno-History of Mexico: a study of Pre-Columbian Peoples."

Philosophy - "Cross-Currents in Modern Lebanese Philosophy: Muslim and Christian philosophy explored."

Political Science - "The Salient Crises for '72: research and discussion of urban, domestic and foreign problems."

Psychology - "Explorations into the Mind: a journey into the depths of man's soul as seen through Carl Jung."

"Parapsychological Phenomena: research, interviews with individuals who have experienced psychical phenomena."
